There never will be lasting peace as long as man prefers power, riches and worldly gains in preference to the ex-amples and teachings brought out in the life of the Saviour has their first choice. Scripture has never recorded in the 33 years of His public life, which osed its doors to Him at this time of is birth. The congregations were ad-inished never to shut the Saviour from their hears, less the same example

The altar was banked with evergreen and adorned with choice flowers, while pedestals of flowers graced the sanctuary steps. Wreaths and evergreens were also circled around the church. The decorations were in charge of the good Sisters of the parish and showed their usual good taste in this respect.
The decorations at the Crib of Bethlehem attracted many visitors and there were many campunicants who approached the altar at the first three

The musical programme was pleasing nd was carried out at the nine o'clock nass, the Misses Sadie Driscoll Miss Lena Boudreau presided at the organ.

The masses on Sunday were celebrat-ed at the usual hours, 7.30, 9 and 10.30 only, Edward G. Lyman. o'clock and large congregations were the rule at each service. The altar and crib decorations remained in place. It was the monthly communion day for Maidens of the Sacred Heart. The St. Patrick's Church.

The customary elaborate ceremoni is marked the celebration of the feast of the Nativity at St. Patrick's church, where the day's services began with a high mass aat 5.30 o'clock, sung by Rev. J. H. Broderick. At 7.30 there was a low mass, read by Rev. Peter J. Cusy. The children's mass at nine was read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. A varied and well rendered musical programme was given by the junior choir, directed by Miss Ruth Jordan, organst. Especially pleasing was the vio-ine solo, Krelsler's Andantino, played by Miss Clementine Jordan and the soorano solo Christmas Song, by Miss Mary Ansel. The fifty members of the choir sang with harmony and spirit, In the solemn high mass at clock, Rev. Myles P. Galvin was cele-rant, Rev. John H. Broderick deacon, and Rev. Peter J. Cuny sub-deacon. The sermon was preached by the rec-tor, Rev. This is a fact not universally believed, although it may seem to be. Another incredible fact and dependent upon the other is that of the incarnation. There is much said about the severe beliefs of the Puritans and others, but they are tender and sweet beside the belief in a far-off God whose fatherhood would not bring him into a Christianity school, 'Tis Christmas Time: short addresses by Supt. J. W. Williams and the pastor, Rev. J. H. Dennis; closing song, Praise the Dear Father; beautiful selections by the choir.
Owing to the bad weather the audience was small, but the exercises were beautifully carried out. The officers of the Sunday school are: John W. Williams, superintendent; William M. Mallison, secretary; Miss Idelia Scott, organist; Rev. J. H. Dennis, pastor.
